SATTIN KANCHIVARAM SILK

Satin silk is a type of silk fabric that is characterized by its glossy surface and smooth texture. The glossy surface is created by a specific type of weave, which uses floating threads on the surface of the fabric. These floating threads reflect light in a way that gives the fabric its characteristic sheen.

The smooth texture is created by a combination of the high quality silk yarns used to make the fabric, and the way the fabric is woven. Satin silk is typically made from long staple silk fibers, which are silk fibers that are longer than the average silk fiber. This results in a fabric that is smooth and silky to the touch.
